The Daily Gazetteer.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27. 1736.

THEY write from Peterſburg, that an Officer is ſet out from that Court to the Camp of the Grand Vizier, with Orders to declare, 'That the Czarina, for the 'Sake of giving freſh Proofs 'of her Diſpoſition for a 'Peace, is willing to recede 'from a Part of her former Demands; that in Conſequence thereof, her Imperial Majeſty is ready to conſent to an Accommodation with the Grand Signior, if he will yield her the Poſſeſſion of Aſoph, pay her a certain Sum to indemnify her for the Expences of the War, reſtore the Limits of the two Empires to their former Situation before the Treaty of Pruth, and reſtore all the Subjects and Inhabitants which the Turks and Tartars have taken from the Ruſſian Territories, whoſe Number, 'tis ſaid, amounts to above 110,000.

The Ambaſſador from the new Sophi of Perſia, Kulifa Mirza Kaffa, who reſides at Petersburg, having been urged by the Czarina's Vice Chancellor, Count d'Oſterman, to explain himſelf clearly as the Preliminaries of Peace ſaid to be ſettled between the Grand Signior and the Sophi, that Ambaſſador return'd for Anſwer,

That he was not inform'd of the Tenor of thoſe Articles; that however he could venture to aſſure them, that the Sophi would never make any Agreement with the Porte, but in Concert with the Czarina; that her Imperial Majeſty had the leſs reaſon to doubt of that Prince's Sincerity, becauſe he was not ignorant, that he might have made an advantagious Peace long ago, if he had not inſiſted upon the Condition for including the Empreſs in the Treaty with the Porte; that the Sophi had rather carry on the War alone, than forfeit his Word; that he had not ſent an Ambaſſador to Conſtantinople, but on the poſitive Aſſurances which the Grand Signior had given, of his being diſpoſed to grant him every juſt Demand; that from ſuch Aſſurances he inferr'd, that his Highneſs did not think of engaging him in any Meaſures, contrary to the ſtrict Alliance that ſubſiſted between Ruſſia and Perſia; that the Sophi did not think proper to let ſlip the fair Opportunity which offered of reſtoring a Peace between the Turks and Perſians, and of putting an End to the Differences betwixt the Porte and the Czarina; that tho' the Court of Perſia did not acquaint that of Ruſſia with its Reſolution to ſend an Ambaſſador to Conſtantinople, 'twas undoubtedly for Reaſons which ought not to create any Diffidence or Diſguſt in her Imperial Majeſty; and finally, that the Sophi had not determined to make a Peace with the Turks, till he had been informed of the Negotiations ſet on Foot between the Czarina and the Grand Signior, at which, however, he did not take Umbrage.'

The Miniſters at the Court of Vienna hold frequent Conferences about the Succeſſion of Berg and Juliers, the Clauſe of Religion inſerted in the IVth Article in the Treaty of Ryſwick, the holding of a General Congreſs, and the enſuing War with the Turks. The Miniſter of one of the Proteſtant Princes has preſented a Memorial, preſſing for the Nomination of Commiſſioners to enquire into the Affair of the Succeſſion of Berg and Juliers, and to decide the ſame in a proper Manner before the Elector Palatine's Death, in order to prevent any ill Conſequences that may ariſe from it.

'Tis confirm'd, that the Grand Signior has cauſed to be notify'd to the commanding Officer at Belgrade, that if the Imperial Army paſs the Save, he ſhould look upon that Step as a Declaration of War; and this has not hinder'd the Army under the Velt Marſhal Palfi, from continuing its March towards Petrowitz, and 7 Regiments of Huſſars have Orders to join him.

They write from Naples, that one of the baſeſt Deſigns, happily prevented from being put in Execution, is at preſent the Subject of all Converſation both at Court and in the City.

'The old Count de L—, Governor of Fort del Carmine, having a Grudge againſt the Princeſs 'Dowager of Avellino, intended to aſſaſſinate her; 'and for this End, he had, by Money and Promiſes, 'engaged her Waiting Woman to introduce him 'in the Night into her Palace: But the Waiting 'Woman being, after ſome Conſideration, ſtruck 'with Remorſe at the Thought of having conſented 'to ſo foul a Deed, fell on her Knees at the Feet of 'her Miſtreſs, and divulg'd the whole Affair to her. 'Upon this, the Princeſs immediately gave private 'Notice of it to the Count de St. Eſtevan, Steward 'of the King's Houſhold, who went and told it to 'his Neapolitan Majeſty; but it being not thought 'ſo prudent to arreſt the Count upon the bare Accuſation, as to take him in the Fact. The Steward 'had Orders from the King to go to the Count de 'Charny, Commandant General of Naples, and to 'command him to take proper Meaſures for 'arreſting him, when he was juſt ready to put his 'horrid Deſign in Execution. The Count de 'Charny therefore, in concert with the Princeſs, 'cauſed ſome Soldiers to lie in wait in the Garden of the Avellino Palace, and in the Rooms 'adjoining to the Princeſs's Apartment. And about 'Midnight, the Time that had been appointed by the Waiting Woman, the Count enter'd in 'the Diſguiſe of a Sailor, at the Garden Door, and 'was going up without any Moleſtation into her 'Apartments, when her Chamberlain, who kept a 'good Look out for him, ſtopped him with a Piſtol in 'his Hand, which he preſented to his Breaſt, 'threatening to ſhoot him, if he ſtirred one Step 'farther. The Count, who was half dead with the 'Fright, fell down at his Feet, and begged him to 'ſpare his Life. The Noiſe alarming the Soldiers 'who lay hid, they ruſh'd in and ſeiz'd the Count, 'and carry'd him inſtantly to Caſtle del Ovo, where 'he is kept cloſe Priſoner, with one or more Guards 'conſtantly to watch him. The Court ſeems reſolv'd 'to puniſh him with the utmoſt Severity, for an Example to a City, where Diſguſts that are ſometimes 'utterly groundleſs, are too often reveng'd by Murders or Aſſaſſinations. Mean time the Count is 'ſucceeded in his Command of Fort del Carmine by 'a Colonel of the Swiſs Guards, and by the King's 'Orders, all People that keep Publick Houſes or let 'Lodgings, are obliged to carry a Liſt of their 'Gueſts and Lodgers every Morning to the Secretary of State.'

Laſt Monday ſe'nnight the Prince of Orange, the Duke of Richmond, and ſeveral other Perſons of Diſtinction, were ſplendidly entertain'd at Dinner by the General de Broſſes, King Auguſtus's Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary at the Hague.

They have had Advice there of the Death of Don Joſeph Patinho, Prime Miniſter and Secretary of State to the King of Spain.

They write from Dreſden, that M. Keyſerling, her Czariſh Majeſty's Miniſter at this Court, has preſented a ſecond Memorial, upon the Subject of the continual Incurſions made by the Tartars into Poland, and enforces the Neceſſity of his Poliſh Majeſty's taking ſpeedily proper Meaſures to hinder ſuch Practiſes for the future. Count Lynar, the Poliſh Miniſter to the Court of Petersburg, who is now returned hither with his Poliſh Majeſty's Leave, reports, that the Ruſſians think there is the ſtricteſt Friendſhip ſubſiſting between the Perſians and them; and that the News which had been ſpread of a Peace being concluded between the Grand Signior and the Sophi of Perſia, was entirely without Foundation. M. de Loſs, his Poliſh Majeſty's Miniſter to the Court of Great Britain, arrived here a few Days ago from Hanover.

They write from Copenhagen, that on the 8th O. S. being the Birth-day of the Princeſs Louiſa, the ſame was celebrated at Friedensburg in plain Habits, according to the Ordonnance of the 16th of April laſt, to reſtrain Luxury in Apparel. The Princeſs, who is Daughter to their preſent Daniſh Majeſties, enters now into the Eleventh Year of her Age. The King of Denmark went lately to ſurvey the Building of his new Palace, which has already occaſioned a vaſt Expence, and is now advanced to the Third Story. The Daniſh Court came Yeſterday to Friderickſberg, a Town in this Neighbourhood, where it is ſuppoſed they will paſs the Winter.

The States of the Province of Holland will aſſemble on the 3d of November O. S. and it is hoped the Grand Penſionary may then be able to aſſiſt in their Deliberations. M. St. Gil, the Spaniſh Ambaſſador here, ſays publickly, that the Affairs which have been ſome Time depending between his Maſter and the Court of Vienna, are now entirely adjuſted, and that in Conſequence thereof, Tuſcany will be immediately evacuated by the Spaniards. The ſaid Ambaſſador is making Preparations for giving a ſplendid Entertainment on Sunday next, to a great Number of Perſons whom he has invited, in order to celebrate the Birth-day of Don Carlos.
